NEW PARTY SLEIGH.

Our genial stable keeper, Mr. C. F. B. Tilden, who has an eye to the wants and convenience of his patrons has just had built for him at the factory of Tirrell & Sons of Quincy, an elegant party sleigh which is to say the least, one of the prettiest affairs of the kind which we have ever seen. The sleigh is 13 ft. 6 in. in length inside and will seat comfortably 26 persons. It is very strongly built from the best of stock and is so constructed that overturning would seem almost impossible, although it certainly would be with the reins in the hands of C. F. B. T. It is handsomely painted in red with black trimmings, while on each side filling the entire length of the panel is the name, in handsome gold letters, "Grace May" it being named for Mr. Tilden's oldest daughter. Mr. Tilden is now ready to accommodate parties at a very reasonable price and our citizens should now avail themselves at the first opportunity of a good ride with a good team. The new sleigh was used for the first time last Monday evening when a party was conveyed to South Weymouth, and all who went pronounced it a "Daisy."

For some reason the essays failed to appear, only one young lady, Miss Florence Seaver, contributing a paper, and she declined to compete. Mr. Wood, however, kept his own counsel and the result makes its appearance this week in a handsome copy of Jean Ingelow's poems as a Christmas gift. Mr. Wood evidently does not believe in "preaching cream and leaving skim milk."

Treasurer's Seventy-Sixth Semi-Annual Report.

At the semi-annual meeting of the Trustees of the Cohasset Savings Bank, held January 1, 1884, the following report was read and accepted, and the dividends therein recommended declared.

Since the first of July last, the Treasurer has received from 226 depositors $21,985, and during the same time $20,047.29 have been withdrawn by 204 depositors. The increase in the general deposit account including the dividends of July which have been added is $8,304.80.

The net earnings for the six months are $9,544.52. It is recommended by the Board of Investment that $360 of this sum be carried to the Guarantee Fund account, and a dividend of 2 1-2 per cent. on sums that have been on deposit six months and 1 1-4 per cent. on sums that have been on deposit three months be declared. These sums will require $9,274.27, leaving a balance of $270.25 to be added to the surplus or accumulating fund, making that fund at the present time $3,289.82.

CONCERT AND BALL.

The concert and ball given at the Town Hall last Friday evening by Zurich's orchestra of Boston, were very slimly attended, owing probably in a great measure to the very hard walking caused by the icy condition of the sidewalks and streets. About twenty-five attended the concert and at the ball which followed it was with difficulty that three sets could be formed. The concert, although quite severely criticised by some, was on the whole, we think, very good. The music for the dancing was called very much better than that of the concert. The affair was a financial failure, which result ought to have been fore seen, inasmuch as it is next to impossible for our own townspeople to get up a successful dance, and home enterprise should certainly be supported in preference to out of town affairs.

NEW YEAR'S PARTY.

A large and pleasant company were gathered at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Litchfield on Tuesday evening, the occasion being the celebration of festivities deferred from Christmas. A heavily laden Christmas tree was not the least attractive feature of the occasion, gifts both valuable and beautiful, not forgetting the humorous, were bestowed by Santa Claus, who was personated by Mr. H. G Vinal of Plymouth, who in his unique costume proved himself equal to the occasion. Mr. L. was presented with a comfortable chair, and his wife with gifts in silver and gold and there were presents innumerable for the little folks. Notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather a large number of friends were present from Boston, Plymouth and Kingston, and so enjoyable was the occasion that all agreed that Egypt was just as pleasant in doors at New Years as it is out of doors in midsummer.

Bermuda Letter.

HAMILTON, BERMUDA ISLANDS }
Dec. 20th, 1883. }

Mr. Editor:—

Here we are beneath a Summer sun, in a genial climate, and amid novel and picturesque scenery, all of which bewilder, enchant and fill one with amazement.

Within seven hundred miles of New York, it would seem almost impossible to find so wonderful a change, in scenery, climate, government and vegetation as these beautiful coral islands afford, but such it is. Seeing is believing. Flowers in rich profusion, birds of brilliant plumage and sweetest song and a perfect fairy land are ours to enjoy.

We were promised to make due allowance for the usual coloring given by most writers to places which they have visited, and from the flowery writings of those who have been here we expected to find it a little over-drawn. But it is not so. No one can exaggerate in writing of the Bermudas.

Only three days here and but a little seen as yet, but I might write more than the contents of this paper would contain, had I the time and you the space to publish. I find myself quickly feeling the effects of the climate. Lazyness is in the air. Nobody hurries here. It can't be done. My activity and ambition are all taken out of me, and that is just what I wanted, for a time at least.

Perhaps an ocean voyage of three days never possessed more of excitement and sublimity, than this passage of the good steamship "Orinoco," which sailed gracefully out of her pier on North River, New York, Thursday afternoon, Dec. 13th, amid the cheers and good-bys salutations of friends of the passengers, and the well wishes for a prosperous voyage from every spectator.

Enjoying the sail out of the harbor of the Commercial Metropolis of America, and darkness approaching, we met in state of the passengers (51 in all) at the supper table at six o'clock, for the first and last time during the trip. Here we were quite social, and found the company comprised of clergymen, lawyers, doctors, teachers, and many prominent business men, ten or more of whom were from New England.

Before leaving the tables a gentle undulating roll of the steamer reminded us we were out of Sandy Hook, and had taken a course S. E. by S. for Bermuda. How quickly the scene changes. The bill of fare quickly disappeared to their state rooms, and the gentlemen whose nerves and stomachs could not finish their accustomed cigar.

Neptune was on board, and the exacting god was bound to have a tribute from nearly every one. Your correspondent paid his, not grudgingly, but of necessity, and the king of the sea let up on me all the rest of the trip, and I acknowledge my debt of gratitude to him, for the privilege of being around, to see, hear, and enjoy, save the set back caused by slipping on the wet deck and grasping the rail near my stateroom door to save myself from being dashed against the iron bulwarks, thereby sprining to an ugly manner the second finger of my right hand, as your compositor will vouch for in his attempts to decipher my hieroglyphics. However it might have been worse, and I will cheerfully suffer the pain and annoyance it will cause me for several weeks.

Thursday night the winds increased, the ocean swells and sea alley, and a sleep of three hours only did I get. Friday noon the steamer entered the Gulf Stream in latitude 38, the weather being ugly, and showers and squalls following each other in rapid succession, increasing in force till evening, when the portentious gloomy scenery of a land night and a gale.

The steamer ploughed along just the same at half speed, and a midnight a sea was struck which came all over the upper deck and made itself visible in my stateroom. The Captain immediately hove the steamer to, and we lay to for the greater portion of seven hours, when a little let up admitted of putting the steamer again on her course at a slow rate of speed. Saturday and Saturday night we were met with still an ugly cross sea, having passed out of the Gulf Stream at noon. Those few who were able to get around enjoyed the grandeur and sublimity of the storm with a feeling of perfect safety, knowing that no storm or gale could expend its power in injuring the new iron steamer of 1,760 tons. So we took it all in, continually moving to all parts of the ship, sympathizing with the suffering sick, fortifying the timid ones by allaying all apprehensions of danger, and enjoying most of all the excellent cuisine of the tables in every variety and abundance.

Dishes were pined, wedged and boxed on the table and still they couldn't be kept there. It was my good fortune to be honored with a seat next to the head of the table by the suave of our noble and efficient commander, Capt. W. S. Fraser, whose conversation kept a continually coming appetite, and we lingered long. Whatever dishes we could not stop as they sided by at every roll of the steamer, were checked in their mad career and held before us by our courteous waiter John Roy, to whose kindly service and attention during the entire trip, just acknowledgment is due.

Newspaper correspondents vie with each other, and we remember how truthfully a former writer related that this steamer once turned over on her smoke-stack when she struck into the Gulf Stream, and never righted till reaching the other side, a distance of 240 miles; but this time on entering the stream she began circular and gyratory motions, at times being graceful elliptical, parabolic and hyperbolic curves, and finally settling down to a perfect circular motion, which was continued until the opposite side was reached, when she slipped off on a tangent right side up, and continued on her course under full steam.

Sunday morning the sun shone out brightly, and the Captain was on the bridge, in his shirt sleeves, while the sick crawled out on deck to drink in the summer air. Now we had bid good bye to the chilling winds, and winter ice and snow of New England.

An observation taken at noon Sunday, showed we were forty miles from the Bermudas, but not steering directly for them, on account of laying too and breasting the terrible seas.

After a dinner which was good enough for a king, we went up on the bridge with Capt. Fraser and enjoyed our cigar, as we sighted land at 2 p. m. some 15 miles distant. Soon a little white speck appeared right ahead, and the steamer steered direct for it. It was the pilot and his small sailboat to pilot in the steamer. What an excitement now prevails. If his boat should be swamped and he not reach us. But this cannot be. Nearer and nearer we approach, the steamer slowing down, and finally stopping, when on the top of a wave appears a huge burly negro of 200 lbs. weight, in shirt sleeves and a little bundle under his arm. Watching his chance, he springs to the side of the ship grasps the lines, and runs up the rattlings and on to the deck with the agility of a mouse. He is surrounded by his brethren and sisters of color, and hugged with shouts of joy and delight. There he stood, as we looked down upon him, with the dignity of the noblest man on the face of the earth. After his reception is over, he comes up on the bridge and passes to the Captain the latest Bermuda paper of the Daily, which, on being passed to me, I read with great interest. No other by law than this negro, is allowed to pilot the steamship Orinoco through the tortuous channel over the treacherous coral reefs a distance of ten miles into the pretty harbor of Hamilton. Under his guidance the steamer anchored in Grassy Bay at 3 p. m. Sunday evening. Soon a ring came along side, took several passengers and the mail consisting of 26 large sacks, and started for Hamilton. We enjoyed a good night's rest on board, and with language could give your readers some faint conception of the sail up among the islands, which we took Monday morning. At nine o'clock we were on shore, and submitted to the usual inspection of baggage by the custom house officer, and then went in search of a location for a few days.

We are anchored opposite Front St., the principal business street of the town. From the nature of soil, limestone, the streets are almost white. The houses are rarely more than two stories in height built entirely of the Bermuda stone, roofs, chimneys and all. Glancing at the white roofs, one's first thought is, that there has been a fall of snow; but the thermometer soon convinces him of his error. Doors and windows are wide open, flowers bloom in front of every house, the oleander, red, pink and white, everywhere abounds.

Hamilton has about three thousand inhabitants, is prettily laid out, the Custom House, Trinity church, and the public library buildings, being quite pretentious and showy. After dark, the town is nearly deserted, most of the business men going to their homes a few miles out very early. We have visited the United States Consul, Hon. C. M. Allen, who is a Massachusetts man, and received us with courtesy and sociability which at once made us feel at home; the Public Library building, and were present at the Council Chamber yesterday at noon, Dec. 19, at the prorogueing of Parliament, which is a more matter of form. Under military escort, the Governor is received, and delivers a short address to his Council. The elite of the place are invited, and it is quite a gala day in Bermuda.

Hamilton supposes three newspapers and is quite a business place, although everybody moves very leisurely, and with an air of half-leisure. About two-thirds of the population are colored. The whites are very glad to extend a cordial welcome to strangers, and the blacks are courteous, even in answering any question.

The Hamilton Hotel is situated on an eminence overlooking the town and harbor. It is fully up to the standard of the Continental Hotel, and under the management of its present proprietor Chas. G. Esmons so well known as connected with the Rockingham, in New Hampshire and with Mr. Sullivan as steward, formerly of the Parker House, Boston, it is not surprising the Hamilton is always full. The cuisine and service at the Hamilton cannot be excelled. Tom takes second place to none as a waiter resort.

Last evening I was strolling in the beautiful Victoria Park, with its wealth of flowers and cedars and I met a gentleman who was suffering terribly from seasickness on his voyage hither, and when asked how to feel, said he wished he had stayed at home.

A friend said, "Does it pay to come to Bermuda?" "Why yes," said he, his face beaming with smiles at the thought of all that one suffers to see this earthly paradise." There is no other way to get here, and generally it is not rough, but quite often as smooth as a mill-pond. A superficial survey of the Bermudas can be made in a few weeks, but for months, novelty, enchantment and the wonders of the universe may be met with here at almost every turn.

In my next I will endeavor to give some descriptions of St. George, The Royal Dock Yard, The Devil's Hole, classically known as Neptune's Grotto, Ireland Island, and St. David's Island Light. In the mean time I will enjoy my strawberries, strolls, riding and bonding, paw-paws, oranges and bananas, while you enjoy the Christmas Holidays at your homes.

I'LL TAKE WHAT FATHER TAKES.

'Twas in the flow'ry month of June,
The sun was in the west,
When a merry, blithesome company,
Met at a public feast.

Around the room rich banners spread,
And garlands fresh and gay;
Friend greeted friend right joyously
Upon that festal day.

The board was filled with choicest fare;
The guests sat down to dine;
Some called for "bitter" some for" stout"
And some for rosy wine.

Among this joyful company,
A modest youth appeared;
Scarce sixteen summers had he seen,
No specious snare he fear'd.

An empty glass before the youth
Soon drew the waiter near,
"What will you take, sir?" he inquired,
"Stout, bitter, mild, or clear?

"We've rich supplies of port,
We've first class wine and cakes!"
The youth with guileless look re lied,
"I'll take what father takes."

Swift as an arrow went the words
Into his father's ears,
And soon a conflict, deep and strong,
Awoke terrific fears.

The father looked upon his son,
Then gazed upon the wine.
O, God! he thought, were he to taste,
Who could the end divine!

Have I not seen the strongest fall,
The fairest led astray?
And shall I on my only son
Bestow a curse this day?

No; God forbid! "Here, waiter, bring
Bright water unto me,
My son will take what father takes;
My drink shall water be."

Barbara Bryson's Blunder.

BY ARTHUR LANGDORN.

When Mrs. Bryson answered the vigorous summons at the bell, she found a young girl in waiting.

She had a bright, pleasant face, and was neatly clad. She had in her hand a small caba, while at her feet was a valise, where a porter had just deposited it.

'Oh, it is you, is it?' Mrs. Bryson said. 'Pray, come in.'

She led the way into the sitting-room, and the young girl followed, leaving her baggage in the hall.

'Mrs Claxton tells me your name is Arabella,' Mrs. Bryson said. 'I was afraid it was Bridget, a name which I detest. I shall call you Belle. Have you any objections?'

'No,' she answered.

'Your hands look very white and delicate,' Mrs. Bryson remarked. 'Have you been out of place any length of time? You can enter upon your duties at once, and first in order will be the preparations for dinner. I'll show you the room you are to occupy.'

It was a pleasant apartment, so far as light and ventilation were concerned, but that was all. It was on the third floor; the furniture was meanlooking, and there was very little that was suggestive of comfort.

'The bed is clean,' Mrs. Bryson announced. 'My last girl was as tidy as yourself.'

After a reasonable delay, the new hired girl made her appearance in the kitchen.

'Goodness me!' exclaimed Mrs. Bryson. 'You are not going to work in that expensive dress?'

'The others which I have are much better,' the girl replied.

'Well, I say!' rejoined Mrs. Bryson. 'You must have spent all your wages in putting finery on your back.'

'Mrs. Bryson, don't worry about it!' interrupted Miss Bradfield. 'I wasn't offended. I could have undeceived you at any moment. I tell you I enjoyed it.'

'But to think I gave you such a miserable room, Miss Bradfield. It is too bad!'

'She shall have the best room in the house, boisterously declared Vance. 'Sister, Jennie is to do my cooking hereafter. I am glad to know that you can recommend her. We are to be married in a couple of months.'

Pug dogs as pets have had their day among the extremely fashionable, but colds never go out of fashion, so that it is always necessary to know that Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup is a sure cure for all coughs and colds.

When looking into your friend's album never make any remarks about a picture until you know who the original is. If you laugh at it, it will be sure to be a near relative, and if you praise it, it will turn out to be your friend's pet jealousy.

IN GENERAL.

Most of our comforts grow up between crosses.

The year 1883 began on Monday and ended on Monday.

Politeness is like great thoughts—It comes from the heart.

The first complete sewing machine was patented by Elias Howe, Jr., in 1846.

A Boston bride commences housekeeping with the modest sum of $8,000,000.

Beware of the over-civil stranger and the flattering friend; both have axes to grind.

The "Confederate rose" is a singular flower grown by Joseph C. Bailey, of New Orleans. It is white in the morning, but red at night. It grows in large bunches.

Lord Chatham said: "I should have inscribed on the curtains of your bed and on the walls of your chamber, 'If you do not rise early you can make progress in nothing.'"

Tri Belcher, who died in Taunton a few days ago, was one of the best known stage drivers in eastern Massachusetts 30 years ago. He drove a line from Boston to Easton.

Eighty thousand children in the north of England form the "Dickey Bird Society." They are pledged to protect birds, never to destroy a nest and to feed birds in winter.

The largest locomotive ever built is being made in Sacramento by the Central Pacific Railroad. The engine and tender will weigh 105 tons, and will be 65 feet, 5 inches long.

A Chinese maxim says:—"We require four good things in woman: that virtue dwell in her heart—that modesty play on her brow—that sweetness flow from her lips—that industry occupy her hand."

How true it is that history repeats itself. Generals Washington and Sherman, by a curious coincidence, issued their farewell orders to the army on the same day just a century apart, Nov. 1, 1783 and 1883.

The name of the post office of Nope, in Dukes county, Massachusetts, was not regarded by those receiving their mail there as sufficiently pleasing to the ear; so they had it changed to Squibnocket, and are happy.

A contented mind is the greatest blessing a man can enjoy in this world; and if in the present life his happiness arises from the subduing of his desires, it will arise in the next from the satisfaction of them.

The history of the world teaches no lesson with more impressive solemnity than this: That the only safeguard of a great intellect is a pure heart; that evil no sooner takes possession of the heart than folly commences the conquest of the mind.

A pretty mantle cover for a sitting room may be made of crash fringed about four inches and worked in some simple outline. This process is very easily done and its effect is very pleasing. The crash, as it is washable, is better than felt or momie cloth.

The oldest newspaper carrier in Philadelphia has just retired from business at the age of 73. He has sold his route which he held for forty-eight years. In summer and winter he never missed a day all this time, but trudged his 12 or 15 miles and served his customers punctually.

A Kansas farmer saw a flock of quail running along between the rows of corn which was just sprouting. Conceiving the idea that they were pulling the seed, he killed one and found in its crop "one cut worm, twenty striped bugs, and over a hundred chinch bugs." He thereupon concluded that he had made a mistake.

It is said that the first use of postage stamps in the United States was in 1845, when postmaster E. A. Mitchell, of New Haven, procured printed stamps, which he used for two years, until the first postage stamps were issued by the government. His idea was borrowed from England, where stamps had been in use for some time.

A lady in Chicago whose residence affords excellent opportunities for observation, states that on a recent evening, after eleven o'clock, she saw forty seven men and boys, within a quarter of an hour, enter one saloon opposite her windows. With eighteen hours opportunity per dien, we can, by this, estimate the mischief of one saloon as wrought upon 3,384 persons, and a large proportion of them boys. Five thousand saloons might, with this calculation as a basis, furnish 17,000,000 drinkers daily. Heaven forbid, and yet man allows it!

Mr. Emerson's loss of memory during the last years of his life, combined with his abstraction, troubled him seriously, as is well known. One day his daughter saw him walk back into the house which he had just quitted, and begin looking for something. He could not tell her the name of it, and she had to continue assisting in the search without knowing for what she looked. Suddenly her father turned and said: "Oh I it is that thing that people take away and never bring back." "Umbrella," exclaimed Miss Emerson, running for it. The philosopher took it, laughing, and walked off content.

TEMPERANCE.

A man named Stacy, the owner of a splendid drinking saloon in New York, signed the pledge lately and closed his house. Hearing that a party of lads had formed themselves into a temperance society he gave them his experience as a rumseller. "I have sold liquor," said Mr. Stacy, "for eleven years—long enough for me to see the beginning and end of its effects. I have seen a man take his first glass of liquor in my place and afterwards fill the grave of a suicide. I have seen man after man, wealthy and educated, come into my saloon, who cannot now buy his dinner. I can recall twenty customers worth from $100,000 to $500,000, who are now without money, place and friends." He warned boys against entering saloons on any pretext. He stated that he had seen many a young fellow, a member of the temperance society, come in with a friend and wait while he drank. "No, no," he would say. "I never touch it. Thanks all the same." Presently, rather than seem churlish, he would take a glass of cider or harmless lemonade. "The lemonade was nothing," said the rumseller, "but I knew how I would end. The only safety, boys, for any man, no matter how strong his resolution, is outside the door of the saloon."

A lady has just given $6,000 to the temperance cause, who a few years ago was told by her husband that as temperance was being agitated in their state, Virginia, he thought he would sign the pledge to help the cause. With great pride she said, "I would be ashamed of a husband who would thus surrender his personal liberty." One year from that time he died of delirium tremens, and her sons learning to drink at their mother's table, have both died drunkards.

In a pretty little village near the town of Ross in England is a block of neat, wellkept cottages, and on the wall of one is affixed a tablet with the inscription:

TEMPERANCE COTTAGES.
Who would have thought it,
A sixpence bought it.
If you a like freehold would buy,
This very same plan you may try.

Hon W. E. Gladstone has said that "Great calamities are indicted on mankind by intemperance than by the three great historical scourges, war, pestilence, and famine." If this be true, ought the traffic which produces them to be licensed under the sanction and zeal of the law? And shall orderly, industrious and temperate citizens be taxed for the expense occasioned by the pauperism and crime which the liquor traffic produces? Is such legislation in accordance with the plainest principles of equity? Mr. Elihue Wright has said: "The time is coming when temperance people everywhere will claim exemption from certain kinds of taxation—taxation under which the consumer now suffers, but which should be thrown up on capital. If the great tax, which is now required to support charitableand pauper institutions, should be put on that portion of the population which is supported by liquor, then capital would retreat."

Nearly 500 of the inquests held in England and Wales in 1880, resulted in a verdict "died from excessive drink."

Old Dr. Sam Johnson said: "I knew how to abstain, but I don't know how to moderate."

Dr. Channing said: "What ought not to be used as a beverage, ought not to be sold as such."

The Baby on the Cars.

There was a baby on a car of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad yesterday afternoon.

It—a baby in long clothes is always in it—was loaded to the muzzle with cry. It was a little thing, not more than two feet long, but it had more cry coiled up in it than you would suppose could be stowed away in a baby as big as a town constable. What wouldn't an auctioneer give for that baby's capacity?

Well, the train and the baby got a good, even start, and for several miles the passengers looked on with interest in the race. Almost anybody would bet, although, that a baby's steam would run down before an engine's, but if you knew this particular baby you would disdain all illegal propositions and declare yourself "not a betting character," which, by the way, is a most righteous declaration—when you have no sure thing.

The poor, young mother of this porcine noise factory was crimson with embarrassment for of course every passenger looked at her and seemed to her to say: "Why don't you shut up that squalling brat?"

Presently a man with long flowing beard came up the isle, chucked the baby under the chin, made a horrid grimace and simpered, "Da, da, da, tootle te tooty."

The baby was crying as loud as it could, but this made it cry louder.

Then a woman reached over from the next seat and whispered something in the mother's ear. Of course, nobody heard what she said, and the mother only sat the little one on her lap and shook her head.

A man across the way said perhaps there was a pin sticking into it, and the baby was tipped and turned and wapped about until investigation exploded this theory.

"Probably got the colic," said a dignified woman with a double chin. A man in a long duster gave it a peppermint lozenge, but the baby deened it with kicks and yells.

The poor mother looked down at the floor as if she wished to find a hillole to slip through. A kind-looking woman came from the other end of the car, took the baby and pranced up and down the aisle, bobbing and jumping the bundle of scream until it was demonstrated that this was not the cure. She passed the baby to a

An Odd Post Office.

It is said that the only post office without a postmaster anywhere in the world, is in the Magellan Straits. This novel post office, or letter box, is a simple water-cask, chained to a rock. A passing vessel sends a boat to the lonely rock—on which nothing but wild sea birds live—takes what letters she can conveniently mail at a civilized post office, deposits its own letters and sails on. In this way, sailors or passengers on an American vessel bound for the South Pacific may send messages to friends at home, a vessel bound for Atlantic ports taking such messages from the cask and mailing them at the nearest large port. There are no postage stamps, no canceled stamps; no post-marks—each person who puts in a letter trusting to his fellows of the sea to mail them.

One He Hadn't Met.

One day a pompous little fellow at a dinner-table was boasting of the great men with whom he was on intimate terms. He had been in constant correspondence with Longfellow, had lunched with Tennyson, was in friendly relations with the Prince of Wales, and in short, knew everything and everybody. At length a quiet individual at the further end of the room broke in on the conversation with, "My dear sir did you happen to know the Siamese Twins when they were in this country?" Our hero, who evidently had a talent for lying, but no real genius, at once replied, "The Siamese Twins, sir? Yes, sir. I became very intimate with one of them, but I never had the good fortune to meet the other."

Dr. James W. Sweet, of New Haven has a letter in another column worth reading.

The Wonderful Efficacy of

DR. SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS

She have so frequently and undoubtedly proven that it seems almost superfluous to say anything more in their favor. The immense and constantly increasing demand for them, both at home and in countries, is the best evidence of their value. Their sale to-day in the United States is far greater than any other cathartic medicine. This demand is not accidental, it is regular and steady. It is now as of to-day or yesterday. It is an increase that has been steadily growing for the last thirty years. What are the reasons for this great and growing demand?

Dr. Schenck's Mandrake Pills contain no mercury, mineral, or any such wonderful effect upon the liver. They cleanse the stomach and bowels of all intestinal matter, which, if allowed to remain, poisons the blood, and in turn on Malaria, Chills and Fevers, and other diseases. They do not purge, but by their alterative action on the liver cause a healthy secretion of bile, which is Nature's cathartic. They are to be taken in doses like the present, when malarial and bilious fevers are raging, as they promote the ability to resist attacks of disease or every character.

Dr. Schenck's Mandrake Pills are sold by all druggists at 25c. per box, or regular size, 50c. per box, or package of pills.

Remarkable Cure of Scrofulous Face.

WESTMINSTER, Conn., June 19, 1878.

Mr. H. R. Stevens—Dear Sir: I can testify to the good effect of your MEDICINE. Mr. Hills boy had a scrofulous humor break out on his head as large as a quarter of a dollar, and it went down his face from one ear to the other, under his neck, and was one solid mass of sores. Two bottles of your valuable VEGETINE completely cured him. Very respectfully, Mrs. O. A. FLETCHER.

How Watch Cases are Made.

In 1875, thirteen men comprised the entire working force used in the manufacture of the James Boss' Gold Watch Case. Now over five hundred are employed, and the number is constantly increasing. The explanation of this increase is this: In the James Boss' Gold Watch Case all the metal is solid, and subject to wear is solid gold, and not a thin shell, which only holds strength to the case, as of ordinary metal cases, while giving gold where gold is needed, and strong, plastic metal where strength and elasticity are required, a combination is produced during a watch case better than solid gold and at ONE-HALF the cost.

Over 250,000 of these cases [illegible] have been sold, and every jeweler in the country can testify to their quality and worth.

E. W. Moody, of the prominent jewelry house of Moody, Stimson & Co., Boston, Mass., says: "I have sold about three sets, which I purchased of you, and not in a single instance has a case given out, or in any way complained to me about it. I am satisfied that the Boss' Gold Watch Case is the best in the market, and the parties who handle the Boss cases are sure to give satisfaction to their customers. I have been in the jewelry business for a long time, and have had a large experience, and I am satisfied that the Boss Gold Watch Case is the best I have ever seen."

RATHER TOO LONG.

After Twenty Years on the Wrong Side of Life a Virginian Turns the Tables.

"How long did you say?"

"Twenty years, I said. Up to the time I mentioned I had suffered from diseased liver for twenty years," said Mr. S. T. Hensley, of Richmond, Va., last week, as I was thinking of that dilapidated section of his life. "At times I almost wished it had pleased Providence to cut me free from the torture and misery."

"Did enough twenty years of that sort of thing, considered a lobster? What was the matter?"

"My appetite was that same time as I went down to Scott's drug store in this city and bought one of BROWN'S CAPSINE FEBRUGE (LIVER) PLASTERS, applied it and was relieved in a few hours, and am now as sound as though my liver were made of India-rubber. My friend Brown's—unlike the old fashioned kind of plasters—act promptly. Look for the word FEBRUGE, which is cut in the genuine. Price 25 cents. Sanbury & Johnston, Chemists, New York.

HANDWRITING AS AN INDEX OF CHARACTER.

Disraeli, in his "Curiosities of Literature," raises a discussion which is not without its interest in the present day, when there are not a few persons to be met with who profess that they can distinguish the character of individuals by their handwriting. Mr. Disraeli's observations appear to have been taken in part at any rate, from a small volume by a disciple of the celebrated Lavater, "L'Art de juger du caracteres des hommes sur leurs ecritures." It was published in Paris about the year 1815. The subject is a curious one, and there is, no doubt, much to be said upon both sides of it. Most undoubtedly there are certain national, and also individual, characters and styles of writing, and it is not with out the pale of probability that these world be taken to indicate certain peculiarities of national and individual character. Every act bears some impress of ourselves. But the thing done and the manner of doing it reflect in a greater or less degree the character of the doer. The vivacity and variableness of the Frenchman, the delicacy and suppleness of the Italian, the plodding scholarship of the German, and the keen-like habits of our own countrymen, may be said to impress their caligraphy with corresponding indications, and these a little ingenuity can arrange and classify. Almost everybody will admit that our handwriting is made to bear the impression of our feelings at the time, and even to reveal them. Who is there who in grief shapes his letters and writes as he does in joy? It was with a full appreciation of this that Shenstone, in one of his letters, says: "I was with a full appreciation of this that Shenstone, in one of his letters, says: "I am sorry to see Mrs. Jago's handwriting, that I may judge of her temper." Many other persons, also, have entertained the same idea and acted upon it. General Paoli told Mr. Northcote that he had doubted upon the character and disposition of a man from his handwriting.

PRINCELY HUMBUGS IN GERMANY.

Nine out of ten intelligent Americans speak of Prince Fritz and Prince Frederick Charles, his cousin, as "great generals." They believe, because the names of these persons were signed to reports and bulletins, that they were the real directors of the armies at whose head they figured. There is no such delusion in Germany, writes a newspaper correspondent. If the German armies had been left to the guidance of those personages, the sum total of the campaign would have been totally different. They never directed a movement, nor the deploying of a corporal's guard. Moltke and his staff conceived and executed every detail of every movement, the princes not being trusted with the most unimportant point. The chief of the staff of each army was its actual commander, the royal princes serving with their figureheads to impress the people with their dependence upon royalty for success in battle. So it goes in nearly every department of public administration; some royal imbecile figures as the responsible head, while the work is really done by brilliant men who are comparatively unknown. Bismarck and Moltke are about the only exceptions, with possibly the King of Saxony, who is said to have some military talent, and who handled the Saxon corps in the late war very effectively under Gen. Moltke's plans. Everything is done, however, to impress the reality of the service of the princes upon the nation. When the late war was ended great rewards were given the Prussian princes and the imperial cousins down to the lowest grades. The two princes, Frederick William and Frederick Charles were created Marshals of the Empire, and awarded large allowances from the French indemnity, while the staff officers, who had really manœuvred the vast armies, were advanced a grade and received a few empty decorations. Von Moltke, Von Manteuffel and Von Bismarck being about the only marked exceptions, Bismarck receiving the title of Prince and half a million of dollars, Moltke the dollars without the [illegible]

COFFEE AS A DISINFECTANT.—Roasted coffee, says the Homœopathic World, is one of the most powerful means, not only of correcting animal and vegetable effluvia in close air, but of actually destroying them. In proof of this, the statement is made that a room, in which meat in an advanced stage of decomposition had been kept for some time, was instantly deprived of all of an offensive character being carried through it, containing one pound of newly-roasted coffee; and in another room the effluvium occasioned by the cleaning out of a cesspool so that sulphuretted hydrogen and ammonia could be clearly detected, was entirely removed on the employment of three ounces of freshly-roasted coffee. Meat and other substances got musty from flesh, fowl, or fish kept too long, is then. No remedy for purifying such receptacles is so simple as burnt coffee, can be employed.

GEMS OF HUMOR.

The farmer's wife should wear gros grain silk.

The ruling passion is strong in a schoolmaster.

A sage remark: "A little more o the dressing, please."

A nod thing in bonnets—A sleeping beauty in church.

The porter of a sleeping car has a rousing time every morning.

"I will now proceed to extremities," remarked the food father, raising his right foot and aiming it at the flying form of a young man.

An Indianapolis man muzzled his wife with a base-ball mask. She couldn't bite, but her tongue could, as he soon found out to his sorrow.

"Papa, I'm going to be an editor when I grow up." "What put that idea into your head, my boy?" "Well, I can always have lots of paste then to make kites with."

Why are there not more lady reporters? Well, we suppose it's because they would tell all they knew before the paper came out, and then no one would want to read it.

Miss Will was married to Mr. Shall in Alleghany county, Mich., recently. The Won't will appear in the family when Mrs. Shall, nee Will, is asked to get up and kindle the fire.

Little Katy heard her mother say that baby Austin was "getting his eye and stomach teeth." She looked thoughtful a few moments and then added, "Mamma, what are iron stomach teeth?"

Little Mamie visited her uncle where grace was said at the table. The next day after her return she said at the dinner table, "Papa, why don't you go to sleep and talk before you eat, same as uncle does?"

A patient calculator has ascertained that "worth her weight in gold" is not the most complimentary thing that can be said about a woman, as she would have to weigh three hundred pounds to bring her value up to one hundred thousand dollars.

Poor George: Mrs. Brown—"Why, I thought Washington was dead." Mr. B.—"And so he is; he died betora the Centennial." Mrs. B.—"Why, I see here in the paper a heading: 'General Washington Dispatches.'"

The "wishbone" wedding has become the correct thing. The couple stand beneath a floral wishbone. After the ceremony the bride and groom are given the wishbone to pull. The tug results in a break somewhere, and whoever holds the long piece is absolved from getting up to build fires in the morning.

The little Hartford girl who gave utterance to the following idea was puzzling her mind with a problem that has bothered the world for ages. She was reproved for some childish act, and seating herself on the floor at her mother's feet, reflected for a long time, and then looking up, said: "Ma! Why is it that naughty things are so nice?"

"Why, Mr. Smith!" exclaimed the young lady, "what's that on your lip?" "That!—oh, that's a muttache. It hain't been growing long. It itch't long enough to bite!" And Mr. Smith made a desperate effort to twist one end of it into his mouth. "Ah, then there's no necessity of being afraid of it," said the young lady, demurely drawing closer, Mr. Smith didn't know what she meant.

Chorus of excited boys—"Then the lightning struck you?" Skipper, indifferently—"Oh, yes; I was leaning agin the mainmast when it struck it." Excited boys—"Didn't kill you?" Skipper, more indifferently—"Wal, no; it all ran down my back." Excited boys—"And what did you do then?" Skipper, most indifferently—"I had to haul off my boots and pour the lightning out on the deck."

"How is it you are so punctual at the office every morning, Smith? You must have an excellent alarm at your house." "Yes, indeed, and a cheap one. You see, every evening, before going to bed, I push the cradle under the 'Black forest' clock, with the weights directly over the baby's head. Punctually at three o'clock in the morning there is an unearthly yell, and I know what it has just struck."

A suggestive reflection: Calino is very sad in thinking that his son, who is now only twelve years old, must one day leave him and enter the military service. "You have still got plenty of time before you," said a friend, trying to console him, "and before us is of age the law may be modified." "You are right," replied Calino, wiping away a tear, "And just think, if he were a widow's son he would be exempt!"

Dumbfounded: "Now," said the irate mother to her family of one boy and four girls, who had been misbehaving themselves, "I am going to whip you all," and she seized on Jimmie to receive the first installment of the chastisement. "Mother," said Jimmie, "ladies first, always." The girl lady was so struck with this application of her own instruction that she did not strike any of the children, but let them off that time.

AN EVENTFUL CAREER ENDED.

Educated, pretty and fashionably dressed women were not common in Nevada City, Cal., in 1854. Therefore the arrival of Madame Dument in that mining town caused considerable excitement, for she was attractive in the three mentioned particulars. Besides, she was not more than 30 years old. She at once hired a corner in a large saloon and opened a faro game. The novelty of a woman dealing the cards drew many gamblers to her table, and her success was so great that she soon opened a large establishment where a dozen games were kept going night and day. She gained the reputation of dealing honestly, was always smilingly polite, and the miners liked her—even held her in considerable respect. But her luck changed at last from good to bad, and she lost all her money. She spent a few years in other business in San Francisco, but could not recover into prosperity. A few weeks ago she borrowed $100 from an old friend and started for the mining region of Nevada, contemplating a new career as a gambler. She opened a faro game at Brodie, but it lasted only a few hours, when the bank was broken. She paid her losses in the old smiling manner, retired to an auto-room, swallowed poison, and died.

THE LANGUAGE OF POSTAGE STAMPS.

It seems that postage stamps as well as flowers have a language. Thus, according to the Albany Times, when a postage stamp has been placed upside down on the left corner of the letter, it means, "I love you;" in the same, reverse, "My heart is another's;" straight up and down, "Good-bye, sweetheart, good-bye;" upside down in the right hand corner, "Write no more;" in the center, at the top, "Yes," opposite, at the bottom, "No;" on the right hand corner, at a right angle, "Do you love me?" In the left-hand corner, "I hate you;" top corner, on the right, "I wish your friendship;" bottom corner, on the left, "I seek your acquaintance;" on a line with the surname, "Accept my love;" the same, upside down, "I am engaged;" at a right angle in the same place, "I long to see you;" in the middle at the right hand edge, "Write immediately." While this is all very good as far as it goes, those who put a postage stamp on any but the upper right-hand corner of an envelope must hold themselves responsible for all the swearing of the post office clerks!

PRINTER'S IVK.
Little drops of printer's ink,
A little type "displayed,"
Make our merchant bosses
And all their big parade.

Little bits of stinginess,
Discarding printer's ink,
Busts the man of business,
And sees his credit sink.

Many London ladies crop their hair short and wear an almost entire wig, and consequently catch cold more frequently than their American cousins, but of course they all use Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup.

A poet, in a four stanza production, says, "I miss you, my darling, my darling," "I want you, my darling," "I call you, my darling, darling;" "I need you, my darling," and that "the blank of the dumb air is hollow" without her. He evidently does miss her—quite considerably; but whether he wants her to sew on a suspender button or pull off his boots, he fails in stale.

Pearl's White Glycerine makes the skin clear, pure, soft and white; is harmless and delightful to use and at once effective. Throw away your complexion and ask your druggist for Pearl's White Glycerine.

A teacher asked a bright little girl the other day what country was opposite to us on the globe. "I don't know, sir," was the reply. "Well now," pursued the dominie, "if I were to have a hole through the earth, and you were to go in at this end, where would you come out?" "Out of the hole, sir," replied the pupil, in triumph.

VERITINE has never failed to cure the most inflexible case of Canker.

It is said that one cent's worth of ergotine will kill a cat instantaneously, and that a millionaire by investing his entire fortune in the drug might become the owner of about fifty pounds of it; but we don't suppose there is a millionaire living who wants to poison 100,000,000 cats.

"What do you charge for lodging?" inquired a man looking himself in front of the hotel register at a prominent conveyancery. "One dollar, replied the discreet hotel clerk. "One dollar, eh! Say, couldn't you take seventy-five cents, and wake me up twenty-five cents earlier than usual?"

And yet one wonders at people "losing a leg to plant my first crop," and the lady of the house in wrathful tones: "What 'per going to raise, corn?" interrogated the man of the house from behind his paper.

Dr. James W. Sweet, of No 980 Howe St., New Haven, who has perhaps the largest practice in the country in reducing Dislocations and Fractures of Bones, kindly gives us the following:

NEW HAVEN, Conn., August 14, 1880.
Messrs Lewis & Co.:

Gentlemen:—I have suffered for the past three or four years with malaria in its different forms, especially chills and fever (intermittent.) I have studied the subject carefully and had arrived at the conclusion that quinine, in some of its forms, must be the only remedy, i. e., if quinine would not cure, one would have to stand it the best he could. My attention some three months ago was called to your Red Jacket Bitters. I gave them a trial, and was happily surprised at the result. The malarial symptoms left me after a use of two bottles. I keep them in the house, however, and do not propose to entertain the symptoms a great while should they recur. I believe you may safely claim for your Bitters that they are a better remedy for malaria, or chills and fever, than has ever before come to the attention of the public.

Respectfully, &c.,
DR. JAMES W. SWEET.

Man may have been created just a little lower than the angels, but one would hardly suspect it on hearing the remarks of the fellow who, when running at a break neck speed to catch a train, suddenly discovers that his shoe lace has become untied.

For the Happiness of Home.

From a Clergyman's House Comes a Message Containing the Wisdom of Experience.

Home is the centre of the social system. From it proceed the best and purest influences felt in the world, and towards it gravitate the concentrated hopes of humanity. For it all good men labor while it or seeking days last, and around it their last thoughts linger lovingly when those days are done.

Yet home does not usually approach in practice its own ideals. The mother is overtaxed with household duties, and the rearing and training of her children, while the father fights the battle of life to win the wherewithal to pay the expenses. Sooner or later care and toil leave their marks. It is true enough as Kingsley sings in the "Three Fishers," that

"Men must work, and women must weep,
Yet toil won't weather and weeping brush all the blooms from life's fruit.

Many a wife and lack of rest and pleasure induce physical diseases of many kind, sending the head of a household to home to give help and strength in times of need. A large proportion of the men who have found such a sure sanctuary in Mr. A. C. Ormsby, proprietor of Drs. A. C. Ormsby, D. D., pastor of the Cadency M. E. Church, of Elmingo, whose words we have her permission to quote:

"I use Parker's Ginger Tonic in my family, and can say that we are highly pleased with it as a family medicine. From my experience of its value, I recommend it as a reliable family medicine." Those ladies find Parker's Ginger Tonic is not a mere essence of ginger; second, it contains nothing to create an appetite for intoxicating drinks; third, it is a splendid health regulative for all who suffer from disordered Liver or Kidneys or any diseases arising from impure blood. Accept no substitute for it. Price, 50c. and $1. per bottle. It is cheaper to buy the larger size. HISCOX & Co., New York.

IT IS A PERFECT AND UNFAILING REMEDIAL AGENT, COMBINING PHOSPHATES AND NOT A CHEMICAL COMPOUND. IT IS A TRUE FOOD, AND NOT A DRUG.

A POSITIVE TONIC, ALWAYS

A PERFECT DIGESTIVE AGENT, AND DURABLE, as it does not stimulate the brain or irritate the nerves, but gives them nourishing effects. It is a specific for NERVOUS and GENERAL DEBILITY, DYSPEPSIA, DIARRHŒA, INSOMNIA, &c. Produces a healthy action of the Liver and Kidneys. Mr. Fletcher Damon left Mr. F. W. Hatch's horse in front of L. P. Hatch's store and the animal being frightened by a snow slide jumped completely over another standing near by but with little damage to either.

Willie Worcester left last week for Florida, taking with him many good wishes from his friends. He will join his friend Edw. Kent of Osceola, Florida, who has been there several months.

The demand for box boards is so light, that many are refraining from cutting the usial supply this winter, in hopes to work off the old stock. This is a mistake for the demand will be good and prices high another year.

The Congregational Sunday School held their annual Christmas exercise in their Chapel on Christmas night, consisting of recitations and singing. After which the gifts that load d the tree were distributed, both old and young being remembered. Dr. Stevens was the recipient of a fine pair of fur gloves.

The Ladies' Benevolent Society connected with the First Cong. Church will hold their Anniversary next Thursday night, Jan. 8, and will probably have a pleasant time. If you come bring a dollar and help the good cause.

The Methodist Society held their Christmas gathering at the old Agricultural Hall, Wednesday Eve., Dec. 26, 1883. The inclemency of the weather prevented the usual "Tree" representation which was substituted by a unique picture of a home after Santa Claus had passed over, scattering upon it many of his gifts, which were distributed among the people after a short entertainment. The sing ing was excellent as usual by Miss Maria Gurney, Mrs. J. G. Sprague, Bryant Pratt, Walter Peterson and Eddie Gurney; Edwin Pratt, Organist. With Florrie Knowles, Ernie Pratt and Johnnie Ewell. "Cast thy bread upon the waters" was illustrated by a touching story, read with much feeling and pathos, by Mrs. J. G. Sprague. Miss Alice Paul read a Christmas selection and Miss Annie E. Williamson read an original piece written for the occasion which we give below.

THE VOICES OF THE BELLS.

Floating on into the distance,
Trembling, tinkling as they go,
Sweetly sounds the Christmas chorus
Over the ice and frost and snow.

Listen, listen to their music
Chiming sweetly everywhere,
Catch the meaning of their ringing
Ere they die upon the air.

For the story that they brought us
Through the midnight frost and sleet
Tenching o'er the snow bound hill top,
Ringing through each drifted street.

Echoes not at noon or even,
Heeds not at time of day,
Listen while sweet little children
Tell us what the bells do say.

Merry, Merry, Merry Christmas,
Full of candy, book and toys,
Skates and sleighs and dolls and pictures,
Brought to happy girls and boys.

"Oh, I almost thought," said Eva,
Climbing up on grandpa's knee
"When the snow came o'er the mountain,
Santa Claus would forget me."

"And we once should have no Christmas,
But a single year would come,
Each week's loss our heaps of playthings,
Loose our trust and all their fun.

But just one look quick, oh grandpa,
If we weave across our cheeks,
Into place and form of goodness
Visible in my sweet face."

And the Christmas bells still ringing,
Children lisp their evening prayer,
Hearing with those infant voices
Holy music on the air.

Happy, Happy, Happy Christmas,
Tender words and actions bright,
Full of love and joy and promise,
Full of bright and rosy light.

Ask the story of the ringing,
Sounding clear from misery belle,
Of some Heaven lore in passing,
And with hope the chorus swells.

Thy unselfish, sweetest Christmas,
Brings the bells to parents ear,
Telling of the home before them,
Speaking of some hearts to cheer.

Closing o'er the Christmas story
Ring the many years ago,
Of the manger where the Saviour,
For us was born of woe.

Now the Angels sang their greeting
Over Bethlehem's plains by night,
Of the babe within the manger
Wrapt in swadding clothes so white.

Ring that this infant, Jesus,
Came to our darker land of sin,
Came to save earth from sorrow
And to set His captives free.

And the merry pilgrim leaning
On his staff as slow it dies,
Listens to the words it sing
Which he will not far away.

Sweet and holy is their story,
And with joy his heart responds,
And his heart does catch the meaning
Of the voices of the bells.

"Peace on earth," they tinkle sweetly,
Peace on earth while earth shall be,
Scatter o'er thy field of labor
God's sweet holy charity.

"Peace on earth," still ringing ever,
Chiming through the realms of time,
Till our Savior and Redeemer
Shall be known in every clime.

GREEN HARBOR.

Grace Chapel has been closed for three Sabbaths, as the trustees are taking a vacation.

The weather for the week past in this vicinity has been unsurpassable. The thermometer on Sunday, Dec. 23, stood at 12° below, a lower range than it often reaches here, and all day long the streaming vapors from the ocean shut out the surrounding landscape, which was also without a precedent in our recollection.

Some one has remarked in this paper upon the unusual splendor of sunsets and general beauty of the evening sky; but who has seen the morning horizon from half past five to six? It is resplendent with a flood of crimson and amber which as day advances fade into common every day hues. So that the person who indulges in his morning "forty winks of sleep" loses a rich treat in nature.

At an early hour on Monday morning a forlorn individual might have been seen wandering down the back streets of the settlement in search of a christmas tree. Now, Branch's Island is ever rather a hard place for trees, but with the snow two feet deep on a level it presents insurmountable difficulties, and the young man returned home in a very melancholy frame of mind from his fruitless search. But female genius, nothing daunted, set to work and devised a very respectable image of Old Santa Claus. At an early hour the neighbors on the Hill at the Brant Rock assembled at Charlie Sprague's, as the most central point, in spite of snow and cold, to spend a pleasant evening with music and games and conversation, and as all entered with enthusiasm into the spirit of the occasion, we had a first-rate time. A fine treat was furnished and as the little gifts were taken from the Santa much merriment was afforded. A guess cake beautifully frosted, with an evergreen handle and the centre filled with nuts and confections also furnished sport, the guessing ranging from 12 pounds to 5 pounds. The fortunate possesor cut and generously distributed among the company. Even the feline members of the various families were appropriately remembered by sundry toy lobsters, tiny bottles of catarrh medicine and necklaces. The cats here are very handsome and worthy of a place in Music Hall.

The Christmas shadows and joys gather and flit by, and we cross the threshold of the New Year with new and grateful hearts, made better by the evenings spent with our neighbors Blackman and Wright, where the exhilaration of music and the interchange of thought in conversation and the reading the selected article laid away for the occasion, all bringing a purer imagination, and reflecting resplendent beauty on our lonely shore life. At Mr. Wright's some 60 friends and relatives gathered. It was the 25th anniversary of their marriage, and many were the tokens of regard as the evening passed away. As we left for home at a late hour we found ourselves humming the favorite carol,

"True hearts are more than coronets
And simple faiths than Norman blood."

At the "Island Farm" we found parents and children around the ancient fireplace, where burned as of old, the logs during the long wintry night. Added to the feast of reason and the flow of soul, were large oranges from the far south, sweet as the ambrosial fields and the nectar of the gods, sent to make glad the hearts of relatives in the far north. These visits are at once joyful and profitable. No fearful anxiety about the dark saloon life, with its brood of attendant evils; only now is seen the light of a better day for the children, a dim and now clearer light, as we reach the end of the road that all are travelling. And again as we wend our way home the routine of winter life at the shore is enlivened by the chorus, peace on earth, good will to all.

EAST MARSHFIELD.

Miss Alice B. Wetherbee returned to Wellesley to-day.

Miss Mabel R. Wetherbee returned to her school at Newton on Tuesday last.

Miss Sarah E. Leonard is spending her vacation with her sister, Mrs. Ruth Leonard, at Plainfield, N. J.

The schools in this village, taught respectively by Miss Angie C. Damon and Miss Eva K. Hatch, having been closed during the holidays, reopened on Monday last.

Rev. Nathaniel Seaver, Jr. delivered an excellent New Years sermon in the Unitarian Church on Sunday last, from the text: "Behold, old things have passed away, and all things have become new."

We would respectfully call the attention of the residents in this vicinity, to the advantages to be derived from the reading of the excellent books contained in the East Marshfield Library. The price of membership is but fifty cents a year, and it is to be hoped that every family in the place will avail themselves of the privileges it seeks to confer. The Library contains at present over three hundred vols.

The notice of the marriage of Mr. Wm. L. Sprague of So. Marshfield to Miss Fanny O. Lewis of this village was accidentally omitted in our last issue. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Lane, at the residence of her aunt, Mrs. Calvin Ford, with whom she has long resided. Mr. Joseph Hagar acted as groomsman, and Miss Alice Aiken of Boston, as bridesmaid. The bride was beautifully and tastefully dressed, and at the close of the ceremony received the congratulations of her many friends. The happy couple were the recipients of many valuable presents, and after a bountiful wedding supper took their departure for their new home in South Marshfield.

NORTH MARSHFIELD.

The sleighing is good and was improved by a party of young people on Christmas night.

Mr. Chas. A. Damon of Lynn spent Christmas at his father's, Mr. A. L. Damon.

Mr. Roswell Oakman and Mr. H. Atwood Tilden are at work at Nantasket on the Atlantic House.

School began Monday after a week's vacation. The plan of having a week at Thanksgiving and one at Christmas, instead of two at Thanksgiving as formerly, has been practiced here for two years and seems to give universal satisfaction.

SOUTH SCITUATE.

No ice has been cut around here.

Saturday, Dec. 15, Wm. Sylvester was plowing for Wm. Merritt.

Both expressmen have been doing a good business during the holidays.

Owing to the bad going and worse weather, the Christmas ball was not very largely attended.

Hard going has been the rule for some time, but a smile is gradually stealing o'er the faces of the blacksmiths.

By actual count there are nineteen butchers in the town of South Scituate so all you have to do is to pay your money and take your choice. The Lakeside butcher is talking of giving two pounds of round steak for a quarter with a chromo thrown in.

While Warren Foster was coming down a steep hill in Marshfield, one of the breeching hooks on the shaft of his meat pung broke and let it down upon the horse's heels. The horse soon made kindling wood of the cross bar and proceeded to demolish the dasher.

George Barrell is getting along finely, and will probably get out with a remarkably good leg after its being so badly crushed. Dr. Brownell has attended him throughout his trouble. This is only one of the bad breaks which the Dr. has successfully attended to.

WERE THEY TRAMPS?

The Friday before Christmas a number of men with about a week's growth of whiskers were seen hanging around E. T. Fogg's store and anxiously gazing at the second story windows.

They had tramped through the snow,
Without any path,
Looking for the barber,
Whose name is McGrath.

We thought that we were going to brag that we could beat Cohasset on their big porker by one that J. H. Corthell received from the Hanover almshouse, when dressed, shrinkage allowed, weighed 576 pounds; but since they came out with one weighing over six hundred, all we have to say is that not long ago J. H. Corthell received at his slaughter house at one time three hogs whose united weight was 1607 pounds, and that is the stock he puts into his popular sausages.

The Christmas festival of the children of the First Parish Sunday School took place Christmas evening, and was well attended. Those interested in the school can be well pleased at the performance of the little ones, and the outlook is good for future festivals, as the supply of good speakers and singers seems to be on the increase in the school. One very pleasant feature of the evening was the singing of the young girls of the school and with but little training much good singing can be had in the Sunday School during the year. All the singers have attended or are attending Miss Mary Sparrell's school, and as she has taken upon herself the extra trouble of helping all who wish to learn to sing, she has laid the foundation for a circle of good singers in the future.

WEST SCITUATE.

Christmas holidays bring home the familiar faces of our absent students and teachers. We have observed on the streets the past week H. B. Jacobs of Harvard, A. A. Beal of Tufts, and for teachers Miss Ida A. Jacobs, Miss Leaffie B. Curtis and Mr. F. W. Jones.

The pastor and members of the Baptist Church, North Hanover, held a prayer meeting at Chas. Wilder's residence on South Street, West Scituate, last Wednesday evening. Quite a large number attended, and another one was appointed for next Wednesevening, Jan. 2nd.

We heard last week of the death of Mrs. Oliver B. Prouty, (Carrie T. Southworth) who formerly resided on Grove St., but more lately in New Jersey. We were also informed that her oldest son and mother child were dangerously ill. Mrs. Prouty, previous to her marriage, was well and favorably known in South Scituate as a teacher having taught in several of the public schools with good success.

A CARD.

To the friends who remembered me so generously at Christmas in the gift of a new and most delightful rubber wheelchair, I seek to express my thanks. It was a complete surprise and an occasion when words seem to have their ordinary meaning and utterly failed to express the feelings swelling in my heart. As soon as the gift is priced, surely more the generous thought and kindly feeling thereby expressed. Age is thanking you for the good many other tokens of friendship and respect extended to me and mine since living among you.

I Remain as ever your servant,

LUTHER P. HATCH.

NORTH PEMBROKE.

Mr. Chas. Bryant commenced his duties as night watchman at F. P. Arnold's Sunday evening last. Mr. Bryant can turn his hand at most anything and no doubt will make a first rate man for the situation.

Plenty of snow here but poor sleighing, and bad traveling for those who have to foot it. But that did not hinder quite a company from gathering at the Sons of Temperance Hall, to enjoy a social dance on Saturday evening last. During the evening Mr. Walter I. Baker was made the recipient of $45.00, presented by his many friends and shop mates who deeply sympathize with him in the loss of one of his eyes.

SOUTH SHORE AND COUNTY.

Edwin Wilder of Hingham has been nominated Postmaster by President Arthur for another term.

With the exception of Jan 21, '82 Sunday Dec. 23, was the cold-est day on record for seventeen years.

The venerable postmaster, J. D. Burrell of West Bridgewater is supposed to be the oldest postmaster in the country.

During three days of stormy weather the shoe stores of Plymouth sold not less than $1,400 worth of rubber boots and over shoes.

John W. McCarthy and Wm. Doherty of North Easton, were ordained priests last Saturday at Montreal and Baltimore, respectively.

Hon. John D. Long has been assigned by Speaker Carlisle to the Committee on Commerce of the House of Representatives, Washington.

A piece of land ploughed by James Fox at Downer Landing had never been touch d by a plough within the memory of the oldest inhabitant.

The fiftieth anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Simmons, was celebrated at their residence, in Kingston, on Saturday, the 23d ult.

Mr. Ethan Randall of Hanson, went down south about a month ago, and died very suddenly on the 19th ult. of congestion of the brain.

Levi Berry of Abington has been appointed a special policeman for the purpose of maintaining better order about the church premises Sabbath evenings.

Police Officer John[illegible] Hunt of Atlantic son of Charles N. Hunt, Esq., has been presented with a handsome diamond pin by his friends, for a Christmas present.

James E. Tirrell, Esq., of Quincy has been nominated by Gov. Butler as a Master in Chancery for Norfolk County, and now awaits the approval of the Council.

The skeleton of a British officer killed during the Revolution, has just been found at Winthrop, Mass. Search has frequently been made for the remains before this.

The new passenger station built in North Easton and presented to the Old Colony Railroad Company by E. L. Ames will cost, exclusive of furniture and fittings, about $12,000.

By the will of the late Williams Latham, of Bridgewater, the Unitarian society of E. Bridgewater, is to receive $1,000, the income to be used to aid in maintaining public worship.

A petition asking that a steam ferry may be used at the crossing of the canal at Monument, instead of the bridge which is to be built for the railroad, has been circulated and received numerous signatures.

The relatives of Mr. and Mrs. Luke Worcester gave them a surprise at their residence on Central street, East Bridgewater, last week Wednesday, the occasion being the 50th anniversary of their wedding day.

Mr. James H. Fenno, one of the oldest citizens of Rockland, died last Sunday morning at the advanced age of eighty-four years. He was formerly a leading singer in this region and taught the art to others.

The Church of St. John the Evangelist at Hingham received on Christmas Day an elegant eagle and embossed brass Lectern Bible Imported from London especially for the church by a friend who wishes to remain anonymous.

The tenth anniversary of the temperance crusade was observed in Plymouth last Sunday week by appropriate services in the Unitarian church. The Pilgrim Society held its semi-annual meeting on Forefathers' day, and a public gathering at the church, and a brief service at Cole's Hill.

On Tuesday evening, as the 11:30 train was at the Quincy station, Joseph Hart, of West Quincy, threw a snow ball at the cars. He was seen by Officer Furnald and was immediately taken into custody. He was arraigned before the District Court on Wednesday, where he was ordered by the Judge to pay fine and costs amounting to $10.01 Pretty expensive snow-balling.

The inmates of the Quincy Home were made happy on Christmas day. They were treated by their kind-hearted Superintendent to turkey, pudding, nuts etc., and were made as comfortable as possible. There are now twenty seven at the Home.—All adults. Children are found comfortable homes in other places, wherever they are brought there. Of the twenty-seven nine are on the sick list, and require considerable care.

Copy of an old deed conveying land in Plymouth: "All that certain piece or parcel of land, beginning at the great oak tree off from which Deacon Israel Parish shot a bald-head eagle; thence running north, 5 chains and four links, to a leaning ash tree, with a big burn in the bottom easterly, 40 chains, to a ledge of rocks—great place for rattlesnakes; thence south, 13 chains and 3 links, to a cobblestone wall that waste flung up the worst way; thence west, across a level piece of land around where the Indians used to shoot at a mark, 21 chains, to the place of beginning, containing," etc., etc.

A little four year old boy of Stoughton, hung his stocking Christmas eve and had it well laden with the riches from Santa Claus' hand. Tuesday he heard that Santa was to be in town again, at the Congregational Church, and he went to his mother and asked her if he couldn't hang his again. "Cause," he said, "if Santa Claus should come again, you know, he might want to fill it again." He was assured, however, that Santa wouldn't have time to visit his stocking again. After he had gone to bed his parents were surprised to find his little stocking pinned up side of the mantle, as a surely. The next morning, of course, there was nothing in it, but the Hill—there was not disappointed but assured—another that "He hadn't had give Santa Claus a chance."—[Sentinel.

Nasby's Paper.
The Toledo Weekly Blade
CIRCULATION 115,000
This vast circulation is because the BLADE is a paper for the whole county. It is a family newspaper, but every line in it is edited by competent hands. It is a complete epitome of the news of the week and whoever reads the BLADE carefully needs nothing else to be well informed as to what the world is doing. Editorially the BLADE has made a proud record. It has an opinion on everything that affects the people of the country, and it expresses it boldly, fearlessly and fairly. As good as the BLADE has been in past years, we shall make it better than ever in the year to come.

Among the features for the coming year will be the regular "Nasby Letters," two serials by Nasby, until d "Nasby in Exile," and "Nasby in the South," a serial story by Earnest Warren, entitled "Count and Dempf," a serial by John McElroy, author of "Andersonville," "Reminiscences of an Army Mule"; a serial written for the Blade by an American nobleman; besides our regular departments, "Household," "Answers to correspondents" "Chess Fun," etc., etc. We publish all the news, and latest commercial markets.

Politically, the Blade will continue an organ of true Republicanism, believing that the best interests of the country demand the continuance of its control by the hands of the party that represents the highest and most advanced ideas.

THE RUM POWER.

The Blade will fight this monster iniquity with all the power it possesses, and in every way possible. The Blade holds the liquor traffic to be a great curse to the country, and it thunders more and more Congress to the country.

We ask the co-operation of every well-wisher of the Republic that our work may be effective. We ask every Republican in the United States to assist in increasing the circulation of the Blade, especially among those of the Republican party who believe as we do in the necessity of Prohibition and Rum Power. We want the Blade in as many families as possible this Winter, that it may be read before the excitement of a political campaign, giving it time for its truths to take root in the minds of its readers.

The WEEKLY BLADE, $1.00 a year, postpaid, to Everybody. Three per cent may receive the Blade, three months, by remitting 30 cents, or cinbs of three months trial subscribers, of not less than four, 25 cents each.
